Home Based Business License Additional Information (Title 130, Article 4, Sec. 130.40.160)

3. Direct sales means that the client comes to the home to purchase products.
5. Any additional traffic to the residence other than group instruction to six or less students must be counted as a “yes” reply.
6. An accessory building is additional and subordinate to the building where the home business primarily occurs. Examples could include a storage building or a separate building where recitals are held if the home business provides music lessons in the home. Items that may require storage outside of the primary building may include, but not be limited to: motorized equipment, vehicles other than those for personal use, tools, paper products, consumables, wood products, or chemicals.
- 7a. Employees are those people who report to work at the home site and are under the direct supervision and payroll of the business owner. Employees do not include separate business personnel who provide support services to the home occupation, such as accountants and transcribers who may have occasional on-site meetings with the home business owner.
- 7c. Outside activities would be those business activities requiring the use of the outdoor areas of the resident’s property, such as a garden for photography sessions; a pool for private swimming lessons; or any other use that takes place on the grounds of the resident’s property.
9. Examples of alterations would include changes in the appearance and residential character of the home by use of colors, materials, construction, lighting, or signs.
10. Examples of commercial vehicles could include, but not be limited to a heavy delivery truck, water truck, concrete truck, logging truck, or heavy machinery. A commercial delivery truck that is normally associated with residential uses, such as UPS or DHL vehicles, do not count towards a “yes” reply.
